

A wooden crate filled with wheat stalks, with a tag attached that reads "From the Easter Bakery". The background is a dark, blurred bakery interior.

FF

The Curious Easter Visitors of Craig's Bakehouse.

From the Easter Bakery

A curious delivery...

Early one Easter morning, something unusual arrived at Craig's Bakehouse.

A small crate sat quietly on the counter, tied with twine and labelled simply:

“From the Easter Bakery.”

No one quite knew what was inside.

Meet Benny & BunBun

When the lid lifted, out hopped two small visitors.

Benny - calm, well dressed and clearly familiar with bakeries.

And BunBun - curious, excitable and eager to explore.

The smell of fresh bread

The first thing they noticed was the smell.

Warm sourdough.
Freshly baked loaves.

The comforting scent of a bakery beginning its day.

A very important discovery

Then BunBun spotted them.

Golden hot cross buns, still warm from the oven.

It was, quite possibly, the most important discovery of the morning.

Benny knows bakeries

Benny seemed to understand bakeries very well.

He quietly observed the baking, while BunBun explored every corner.

It seemed they had found a place they rather liked.

A new Easter tradition

As the morning passed, the two visitors stayed close to the bread baskets and Easter buns.

It felt very much like they had decided Craig's Bakehouse might be worth visiting each Easter.

Until next Easter...

And so the story begins.

If you look carefully around Craig's Bakehouse this Easter, you might just spot
Benny and BunBun.

After all, they seem to visit every year.

HAPPY EASTER FROM CRAIG'S BAKEHOUSE